This table shows the answers to a 100 person survey that I conducted on the community. I asked 100 people how obesity has affected their life. The most shocking result I found is that 13 people said that obesity has had a positive effect on their life. First I would like to know how and why it had that effect on them. Although as you can see the majority of people said that obesity has played a negative role in their life. This can mean many things, either bad effects to themselves or to someone they care about. These results, even though conducted on only 100 people still show that obesity affects most people negatively in their lifetime.
